

The United States "Citizenship, Involvement, Democracy" (CID) Survey

The U.S. CID Survey was conducted in May-July 2005 with a nationally representative sample of Americans, using in-person interviews. These tables provide basic findings on some of the questions from the survey—organized by theme—with the overall results as well as breakdowns by gender, education, age group, and ethnicity/race.

	Total	Gender		Education			Age Group				Ethnicity/Race
		Female	Male	≤ High School	Some College	College Degree +	18-34	35-49	50-64	65+	White	Black	Hispanic
Weighted number of respondents	1001	517	484	475	273	252	367	225	213	155	706	111	124

Note: the race/ethnicity breakdown shows Whites, Blacks, and Hispanics only; Asians and "Other" are not included because they are too small a portion of the sample

Note: column percentages shown below do not always total exactly 100%, due to rounding

Note: the weight used for these results was the variable NATWT

Theme: Tolerance — Least-Liked Groups

TOLCHG1 Suppose that one of your friends argued that demonstrations should be banned because allowing the group to express its ideas would cause great damage to society because people might be persuaded by their message. By banning the demonstration we are just protection the security of our society.

Would that make you change your mind and oppose the demonstration taking place, or would you not change your mind and continue to support allowing the demonstration taking place?

TOLCHG3 Suppose that one of your friends argued that demonstrations should be banned because allowing the group to express its ideas would be very hurtful to some people. Since society must keep people from hurt at all costs, the demonstration must be banned. ITOLCHG1 Suppose that one of your friends argued that demonstrations should be allowed because the U.S. Constitution grants all groups the right to hold public rallies and demonstrations. Even ideas we disagree with have the right to be expressed.

ITOLCHG2 Suppose that one of your friends argued that demonstration should be allowed because you can't trust the government to decide who can demonstrate. If this group is banned, it makes it easier for the government to ban demonstrations by other groups just because they oppose something the government is doing?

ITOLCHG3 Suppose that one of your friends argued that demonstrations should be banned because the best way to show how stupid some people's ideas are is to allow them to speak out freely. If people are allowed to hear the group's message, then it will be clear to nearly everyone that the group is crazy, and support for the group's ideas would decline.

Would that make you change your mind and oppose the demonstration taking place, or would you not change your mind and continue to support allowing demonstrations taking place?
